GUIGNOL SEASON
OPENS MONDAY
NIGHT AT 8:30

Complete Theater Orchestra
To Play During Run of First Play

"WHEN LADIES MEET"
IS POPULAR COMEDY

All Star Cast Features the
New Rachel Crothers
Success

Opening Monday at 8:30 p. m. with the popular comedy, "When Ladies Meet," the Guignol theater greets its patrons with an improved and complete theater orchestra under the direction of Alexander Capurso, assistant of the music department staff.

The ensemble numbers 16 pieces with the most complete instrumentation of any orchestra ever to play in the Guignol pit. Musical selections for the Crothers' play have been carefully chosen and are truly programmatic. Due to the standard set by the musical element of the little theater last season in the production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," much stress has been laid down by Director Fowler in regard to better music for the Guignol productions. The Shakespearean comedy of last season will be remembered for its elaborate production with the Mendelssohn-Bartholdy musical score.

An assuring factor to the patrons that good music will be a regular feature at the Guignol, is that for the first time since the little theater's existence, the music department of the University will cooperate and assist in all productions.

Finishing touches on all stage sets to be used in the first production of the season were made at the little theater Wednesday and Thursday. Dress rehearsals are being held every night until Monday.

The cast for the opening production boasts of the best assemblage of talent and Guignol stars in many productions, and is as follows:

Mary Howard	Mina Bloomfield
Jimmie Lee	R. D. McIntyre
Bridget Drake	Mary Lyons
Walter Manners	M. E. Potter
Rodgers Woodruff	LeRoy Mills
Pierre	Wilhelm Schick
Claire Woodruff	Christine J. McBrayer

Block and Bridge Club Sets
November 3 For Annual Agriculture Event

According to an announcement from Horace Nicholson, chairman of arrangements for Block and Bridge club, the fifteenth annual fall festival will be presented by the organization Friday night, November 3 in the livestock pavilion on the Experiment farm. Plans for the program include stunts by various groups, a greased pig contest, milk maids contest, and a steer riding contest, all of which will be in charge of Horace Nicholson, as ringmaster.

The program embraces all departments of the agricultural department, with each section contributing an exhibit in a booth, which will be in charge of one of the students from that section. It is hoped that this will be one of the most successful and attractive shows so far presented. In addition to the stunts, there will be special music contributed for the amusement of the spectators.

Agriculture Dean
Speaks At Smoker

Horlacher Addresses Students And Faculty On
"Push"

Dean Horlacher, College of Agriculture, spoke on the subject "Push," at the Alpha Zeta smoker which was held at 7:30 p. m. last Tuesday, in the Dairy building. Approximately 75 students and faculty members were present.

As an example of initiative in obtaining an education, Dean Horlacher mentioned Elihu Burritt, a blacksmith by trade, who determined to get an education, and who became known finally as "The Learned Blacksmith."

While speaking of the importance of education in the establishment of leadership, the dean said: "Alpha Zeta stands for leadership. The College of Agriculture has for one of its aims the education of leaders. However, no system of education can manufacture leaders as a factory builds an automobile. The attributes of leadership are too elusive for that. What education can, and should do, is to add to the equipment of those able to lead. A college career cannot bestow talents, but it should develop and embellish those talents which have been naturally conferred."

PRESIDENT McVEY

Friday 13th Is Not Dangerous
For Everyone

Misfortunes Probably Would Have Fallen Anyway,
Says Writer

By VIRGINIA ROBINSON

Yesterday it rained; today it will probably rain. This you intelligently observed as you crawled laboriously out of bed and passed through all the stages of not being able to find your bedroom slippers, trying to put your bathrobe on wrong-side out, dropping your tooth brush down the drain, discovering a healthy opening in the heel of your favorite stocking and having fried eggs for breakfast. Then, more than likely, you walked boldly up to the nearest calendar, looked it bravely in the face, gritted your teeth and said, "Well, no wonder."

And I say, how silly! In the first place, the farmers probably need rain—they usually do—and you wouldn't have dropped it. If you had washed your stockings last night you'd have discovered the hole then. Also, if you want to really get along you ought to at least be tactful and bear in mind that fried eggs are nutritious—as well as being easier to fix than any other one breakfast food—even if you don't like them. In conclusion, I might add to the above lecture that your slippers would have been waiting, straight, like little soldiers, and your robe would have been right on side out on Friday the 13th, if you hadn't been in such a darn big hurry on Thursday the 12th.

But no! You logically believe that all your so-called misfortunes are absolutely due to the little coincidence that the number "13" happened to land on a day called "Friday." So you let it get you down! Oh well, I reckon even in this progressive day and age, we can't take-it" youths must have an outlet for all our gripings and blame everything on something—even if it is just a poor ole innocent day. We can't take it. We just think we can.

Yeh, I know—this isn't particularly funny and it isn't even good philosophy—but what the heck—It's Friday the 13th!

Y.W. RECOGNITION
CEREMONY HELD

Impressive Annual Candle
Lighting Service Takes Place in Memorial Hall

SENIOR CABINET ASSISTS

Y.W.C.A. Recognition service was held last night at 7:30 in Memorial hall. Miss Sarah Whittinghill, president, presided, and was assisted by members of the senior cabinet, who were seated on the stage. Members of the sophomore commission ushered and assisted in the candle lighting. Special organ music was played by Elizabeth Hardin, who also directed a chorus of 12 voices.

An illuminated cross with a candelabra and banks of palms and ferns on either side decorated the stage. The program was built around the student purpose of the Y. "We unite in the desire to realize full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God. We determine to have a part in making this life possible for all people. In this task we seek to understand Jesus and to follow Him." All members were given candles which were lighted from the large central candle which symbolized the Y.W.C.A.

The choir sang "Now the Day Is Over," "The Lord Is in His Holy Temple," "Lift Thine Eyes," and "Send Out Thy Light." Members of the choir were Jean Foxworth, Virginia Murrell, Anne Goodykowitz, Irene Foster, Willie Hughes Smith, Virginia Robinson, Dorothy Teegarden, Jane Allen Webb, Eva Mae Nunneley, Virginia Riley, and Winnifred Boatright.

The program of the candle service is entirely original and was planned by the program committee of the Y.W.C.A. of which Lois Robinson is chairman. The service was so arranged that all members of the Y. take part in the ceremony with the members of the cabinet and the sophomore commission assisting the president in the symbolism of the service.

Dramatic Circle
Plans To Hold
Dance On Nov. 4

Strollers, dramatic circle, has planned a dance to be held November 4, in the Alumni gymnasium, according to M. S. Hollingsworth, president of that organization. This is the first time in several years that Strollers has given a dance at this time of the year. The organization plans, not only an extensive dramatic season, but more social activities.

Try-outs for Strollers will be held Monday through Friday of next week. After memorizing the plays that are on the reserve shelf of the library, the week's appointments will be made with T. C. Conrey, chairman of the try-out committee, as soon as possible, since there is a large number trying out for the organization.

Several weeks after the Stroller try-outs, amateur night, an annual event, will be sponsored by Strollers. The best three or four couples in the try-outs will present their plays at that time. After they have been judged, the couple giving the best performance will receive a cup. The winning couple and the others participating in amateur night will gain a certain number of points toward Strollers.

No definite plans have been made by the organization to date. Tentative plans call for a musical production in the spring.

Of This Month, Following the Kentucky-Duke Football Game

The first of two dances sponsored by the 1934 Kentuckian, to be given this semester will be held in the Alumni gymnasium, October 28, following the Kentucky-Duke football game.

Admission will be one dollar per couple and music will be furnished by Andy Anderson and his Night Hawks, eleven piece band. His orchestra supplied the popular dance tunes at the Grants and Aids Barn dance held in the gymnasium last week. Hours for dancing will be from 9 until 12.

According to George Vogel, editor of the yearbook the second dance of the season will be held prior to the Christmas holidays, at which time the annual Kentuckian beauty contest will be held. As in the past, each entrant to the contest must be qualified by the selling of five annuals. Sales books are now off the press and are obtainable from Sam Warren, sales manager. A down payment of $1.25 is required and the balance payable on a date to be announced in a later issue of The Kernel.

Commerce Seniors
Will Edit Bulletin

Commerce Senior's Employment association is planning to release its fall employment bulletins November 1. These bulletins which will be called "Bargains in Secretarial Efficiency" will be sent to 500 merchants and business men within the state. They will be devoted principally to announcing the fact that college trained secretaries are now available for any business. This organization is divided into two divisions, one composed of purely business administration students, while the other group is made up of the secretarial students, whether they are registered in the Commerce college or any other college on this campus.

A similar bulletin was sent out last year, and was successful in obtaining jobs for many graduating students. It is with this object in mind that the bulletin is issued this year.

CORRECTION

In Tuesday's edition of The Kernel there appeared the story of the appointments of radio announcers by Prof. Elmer G. Sulzer, and the name of James Payes was included.

The name should have been that of James Fahey, junior in the College of Arts and Sciences, from Louisville, Ky. The Kernel gladly makes this correction.

Bearcat Plays Used Against Varsity With Effectiveness by Freshmen

With a hard fought victory over the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets to their credit Coach Harry Gamage's undefeated Wildcat squad will journey to Cincinnati Saturday morning to take on the highly touted University of Cincinnati Bearcats. The game will be called at 7:30 p. m. at Nippert Stadium.

A play-by-play account of the Kentucky-U. C. Bearcat game in Cincinnati will be sponsored by the Phoenix Amusement company at the Ben Ali theater starting at 7:15 p. m. Saturday. Neville Dunn, sports editor of the Herald, will bring the account over a private wire direct to the theater audience.

Such an undertaking is new to Lexington football fans and will be under the general supervision of Al Watson of the amusement concern. The distinctive quality of the program will be that no interruptions will mar the account. All the color and excitement, both before and after the game as well as during the half, are to be given to the patrons.

A special preliminary program has been arranged, according to Mr. Watson, and there will be no advance in prices. The feature at the Ben Ali this week, "Her Bodyguard," will show on regular schedule until the Kentucky-Bearcat game program.

The 'Cats came out of the Tech game unscathed with the exception of a few bruises and have been working intensively all week on their offense, which appeared rather weak against the Techmen. The Wildcats were not able to garner more than one first down against the Jackets, and Coach Gamage and his assistants have been working furiously all week in an endeavor to strengthen their running attack.

Coach Birkett Lee Pribble's powerful aggregation, armed with Cincinnati plays, were run against the 'Cats during the first three practice sessions of the week and with the aid of the spinning and driving of Bert Johnson they made several substantial gains against the varsity. The 'Cats are failing to show the spirit in their practice sessions this week that they displayed in their preparation for Georgia Tech last week and unless they show a decided improvement in their final workouts, Kentucky, after tomorrow night may not be able to boast of an undefeated team.

At the beginning of the season the game with Cincinnati was looked upon as being one of the easier games on the Wildcat schedule, but from the reports brought back by Coaches Shively and Campbell, who scouted the Bearcats last Saturday night when they decisively trounced the University of South Dakota by a score of 13 to 0, it appears that Cincinnati has the best team that has represented them in recent years.

Keys, Honorary Sophomore Group, Discusses the Selection Of Candidates

TO PRESENT FROSH CUP

At a meeting Tuesday night of the active chapter of Keys, sophomore honorary fraternity, tentative plans were laid for the present year in regards to selection of candidates and formulation of a point system. Keys men are picked entirely from the freshman class, and are chosen for their qualities of leadership, and activities exhibited.

In accordance with the new expansion program of Omicron Delta Kappa, honorary leadership fraternity, Keys will present a cup to the outstanding fraternity freshman who in the opinion of the active chapter merits the award, and will be presented either at the honor convocation at the end of the year, or at one of the spring social dances.

Further activities at the meeting included the plan to expand Keys nationally through the local chapter, by attempting to place chapters at some of the larger universities surrounding the Kentucky territory. Negotiations have been established with Georgetown, Transylvania, Western State Teachers college and University of Cincinnati. At present there are five chapters, all in Kentucky. They are now active at Kentucky Wesleyan where it originated, University of Kentucky, University of Louisville, Centre College, and Eastern State Teachers college, at Richmond.

Students who sell, lend or give away their athletic ticket books are forgetting their loyalty to the University.

A spirit of loyalty and a sense of pride in everything connected with the University of Kentucky should be foremost in the mind of each student. Is it not a revolting sight to enter the gate of the stadium on the afternoon of a football game and be followed through the entrance by a local "sportsman" who also presents the ticket-taker with a student book? Some student who did not realize what he was doing doubtless sold that person his pass book and in doing so has also sold his University! This statement may seem a bit far fetched, but is, nevertheless, the truth.

The maxim, "of two evils, choose the less," does not apply in this instance. For example, if a personal friend requests you to secure for him a student book for a certain important game, it is hard for you to refuse the request. However, if you do not start this habit of supplying your friends with tickets to the contests, you will not find yourself in an embarrassing situation.

This appeal is directed to the spirit of loyalty manifested by the entire student body in other similar situations. The Kernel is confident that this spirit will prevail in this matter when the individual considers all factors concerned with the selling or lending of student athletic books.

THE WOMAN'S BUILDING

The new Women's building, which was formerly the home of James K. Patterson, president of this University for forty-one years, is now a place for the women students to spend their vacant hours, and spare time. The house is beautifully furnished with modern and antique furniture. Miss Sarah G. Blanding, dean of women, had the first idea of converting this old residence into a place for the women students. It was formally opened last spring with a tea.

Various organizations on the campus have their meetings here; such as the Women's Self Government Association, Pan-Hellenic, Mortar Board, the Young Women's Christian Association, Cwens, and Phi Beta.

Miss Augusta Roberts, secretary of the Y.W.C.A., has her office in this building. She has many girls stopping to talk to her daily. There are many means for the students' entertainment; magazines and books, a radio, and a piano.

Beginning this week for the rest of the year, tea will be served every afternoon to the women students and faculty of the University in the Women's building. The following organizations will act as hostesses: Monday, Phi Beta; Tuesday, Cwens; Wednesday, Mortar Board; Thursday, Y.W.C.A.; Friday, W.S.G.A. This will give the women students on the campus an opportunity to become better acquainted.

PREVENTION IS EASIER THAN CURE

Many editorials and articles have been written about the University campus. Always lovely, it has been even more improved during the last year. It creates an atmosphere of quietness and peace. How would you like it, student, entirely transformed into a training ground for soldiers with a warlike, belligerent attitude prevailing?

According to many international figures, who should know what's what in the world, another war is on its way. Hitler is preparing Germany to renew her offensive move for world supremacy. All nations are rushing to build bigger battleships, faster aeroplanes, more destructive ammunition. Even talk of peace, usually so much indulged in between nations, has been given up. This prediction does not mean that a war will come in the next year or so, but certainly in the very near future.

Transportation has been developed to the point where it will enable the next war to affect everyone in the world. It is up to the students of the country—the girls and boys in high schools and colleges—to prevent war. It is up to them to create a sentiment so strong against it that their governments will be influenced. Most office holders realize that in two or three years a whole crop of new voters will be at large in the country. If those voters know what they want and what they do not want and hold out for these things, they will get them.

War may be thrilling and romantic seen from a distance, but when it effects a nation it no longer creates illusions of grandeur. This depression was partly caused by the last war. Slowly, the world is emerging from it. Do you want to graduate and look for a job in a world again saddled with war and its results?

Take an interest in the affairs of your country! Learn how you may take a share in the government and proceed to do so! If the older people of the nation will not safeguard it for the younger ones, it is up to the younger ones to care for their own interests. Prepare yourselves to do so, and make your feelings felt so strongly that the ones now in command will listen to you. Otherwise, you may find yourselves without a country when the time comes for you to go forth and conquer it.

The number of student autos parked off the campus may be accounted for in two ways: shortage of parking quarters, or, just shortage of quarters.

LAUGH LONG—AND LOUD

Humor, according to the dictionary, is that sense which—well, as we have no dictionary, we cannot very well give its definition. Let it suffice for us to say that humor is that sense by which we know that most of the jokes we hear are not funny. Everyone has a sense of humor, although some people seem to work backwards. Instead of saying that such people have no sense of humor, would it not be better to say that they have an over-developed sense of humor going the wrong way? Or is that too long an explanation?

No two people have similar senses of humor. If they did have, surely once in the millions of times small boys stretch a piece of string across a dark sidewalk, they would trip up someone who would think it was as funny as the boys themselves did. Instead, the "trippee" sees no humor in the situation until the trippers are in his clutches and he has administered his own form of justice. And when a speaker tells a joke he considers funny, surely the law of averages would provide enough people in the audience to create a ripple of applause instead of an ever-deepening silence.

Seriously, for one can be serious about humor, more attention should be paid to cultivating this quality, and less to squelching it. It is the saving sense in otherwise dull personalities. Those people who are popular and welcome in any sort of gathering are those who are witty. If they cannot make wise cracks themselves, they can listen to and appreciate the wit of others. And how people do love to have their jokes laughed at! It all comes back to that good piece of advice which states that if you cannot be an entertaining conversationalist, you can be an entertaining listener. It is easy, however, to overbalance and laugh at people at a time—and perhaps the only time—when they are being serious.

Tolerance is the characteristic most necessary in order to have humor. Nearly everything is funny from some standpoint. Try to see what the other fellow is laughing at and laugh with him, even if he is laughing at you. This has much more effect than becoming angry. If one is in a particularly dignified mood it is easy to grow wrathful at an incessant giggler (or rather, at several incessant gigglers, for they usually come in bunches) but besides adding fuel to their joke, it shows a lack of tolerance. Tolerance and forgiveness are most Christ-like virtues, so let us have more of them. There cannot be too much well-balanced humor, but let us catch the balance, and not turn into practical jokers.

Jest Among Us

We firmly believe that after managing to pull through the last quarter of the Kentucky-Georgia Tech game, we are able to withstand anything, no matter how nerve-wrecking.

Although it is the lowly saxophone against which most of the jibes have been directed, we do wish that that fellow across the street who toots a trumpet so faithfully would blow a valve or something.

PETITE PIECE

By LORRAINE LEPERE

It was a dinner party. There were the usual soft candle lights, the sound of faint sweet music, the noiseless coming and going of perfectly trained servants, and about the table were seated the customary congenial group of friends and acquaintances one finds at most affairs of this sort when the season is open in London.

The host was an elderly man who looked to be of middle age, a bachelor he was, and a man of conceded knowledge and wealth. People came to his dinners because of their own selfish reasons: it was an opportunity to talk about themselves, which was entirely satisfactory to the host, who seemed to delight in toying with his silverware or his long stemmed glasses, and inwardly smile over his guests. Some of them were wont to call him a cynic. And indeed he appeared to be one. But this evening he stepped away from his usual course.

The conversation was centered around a young writer whose novels dwelled on the ways of the world or the effect of emotion on the soul, but at any rate, he was down on life.

"I am indifferent," he said. "I dare anybody to stir me from my own mould!" There was a murmur of approval. Evidently the guests were egging him on. They wanted him to make some admissions. So they nodded assent and encouraged him. But the host cleared his throat and asked:

"Is there nothing in life that you love?"

"What is there in life for a cynic to love?" the young man inquired scornfully, glorying in what he thought was his own individualism. "A factory that smells of machine oil or flings up great clouds of black smoke into the air, is lovely to the man who designed it—or to the man who owns it—or to the people who are interested in it."

"You're going off on a tangent, man," said the younger one rudely. "What have factories to do with a cynic?"

The host considered his watch chain carefully before answering. The table was entirely quiet. Nobody dared speak, for it was unusual when this man voiced his opinions. They knew it was youth challenging age, the pauper sneering at the prince; so they waited, and the host spoke.

"A cynic," he said, "is a man who becomes indifferent to life because of disappointments he is not big enough to overcome. He takes the line of least resistance. The cynic is a fool, to the largest extent, and a masquerader; for there is always one thing that he is not cynical about. That one thing is his life—it is the force that carries him through life. And a meager existence he leads, too, shut up as he is within the four walls of his own stubbornness."

"And what did you say back to him, Edward darling?" asked the young writer's indulgent mother, to whom he had been relating the events of the evening.

"Nothing, mom. He was right."

Roamin' the Rialto

By BEN BLACK

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's latest mystery drama, "Solitaire Man," will be shown at the Kentucky, beginning Thursday and running through Saturday. This picture is unique in that most of the action takes place within a traveling airplane. The story concerns the tracking down of a smooth lone crook. Of course suspicion rests at one time or the other upon each of the characters, until the denouement when everything is explained satisfactorily. In the picture Herbert Marshall, himself a crook, is forced to turn detective to trap the real criminal in order to escape detection himself. Lionel Atwill, as the real crook, turns in one of his best performances. The feminine roles are played by Elizabeth Allan and May Robson. As a boisterous American Mary Boland is a riot.

"Her Bodyguard," featuring Edmund Lowe and Wynne Gibson, will be on the screen of the Ben All the last part of this week. Wynne Gibson, as a showgirl, has to hire a bodyguard to keep her producer and her "angel" from pestering her. Naturally the bodyguard, who is Edmund Lowe, falls in love with her. Its all grand fun; there is a lot of the typical Lowe wise-cracking, and several show numbers are brought in to do it up a bit. Johnny Hines turns in a grand performance as the press agent.

Friday and Saturday "Arizona to Broadway" will be presented at the Strand. This show possesses an exceptionally strong cast—Joan Bennett, Jimmie Dunn, Herbert Mundin, Sammy Cohen and Merna Kennedy. Even if the plot is rather time-worn you will enjoy Joan Bennett and Jimmie Dunn, and surely laugh at Sammy Cohen.

Probably the most serious picture of the week is being shown at the State Friday. This is "Song of Songs," in which the leading roles are played by Marlene Dietrich and Brian Aherne. In the picture Miss Dietrich plays the part of a model. She falls in love with a sculptor, Brian Aherne, and is jilted by him. On the rebound she marries a blustering member of the nobility, only to hit the downward path and be brought back by her sculptor lover. In the supporting cast are Allison Skipworth, Hardie Albright, and Lionel Atwill.

3 CORNERED MOON

seen from the press by box Delmar Adams

This week-end Wildcat followers are promised a fine time if they go to Cincinnati to the Cat-Bearcat battle. The Kentucky Alumni club of greater Cincinnati is planning a dinner for the football players and sports writers at the Netherland Plaza, and in addition to this there are several other luncheons, and after the game most of the fraternities are having dances in honor of the Kentucky supporters.

The promised setup for the Big Blue looks like anything but that. The Bearcats dished out a 13-0 defeat to the strong South Dakota squad last Saturday night. They scored both markers on passes and kept the opponents away from their goal throughout. They have a big fore-wall and a set of heavy, hard-driving backs.

All this week the Cats have worked on the offense and have looked to be somewhat improved, although even yet their offense lacks the power to score consistently. Work on pass defense occupied last session Thursday and the Cats showed that they have improved in this department as the frosh had difficulty in completing their overhead thrusts.

According to an announcement from the athletic department of the University of Cincinnati, all the tickets for the game have been sold with the exception of the block sent to the University. Saturday is a big day for football in Ohio. In addition to the Kentucky game, Xavier plays Carnegie Tech in the Xavier stadium, and Ohio State meets Vanderbilt in Columbus. If you wish to see one of the other games it can be very easily done as it is not far from Cincinnati to Columbus and you can get back in time for the night game at Nippert Stadium.

Early in the season Pressbox said that if the Cats got by Georgia Tech safely they would be hard to stop and would lose but one and possibly two games. Those two "setups" with Cincinnati and Washington and Lee promise to be plenty tough. Cincinnati used to be a hard team for the Cats to beat and after a nine-year layoff will still be hard to vanquish. W. and L. after tying West Virginia have a very high morale and will give Gamagrass boys a very strenuous afternoon if they do not take care. If the Cats get by the setups they will lose but one game. They will beat Duke and break the Wadian jinx, which has hung over their heads for so many years.

There will be plenty of pep at the game tomorrow night as SuKy is sending Lucy Jean Anderson and J. B. Croft to conduct the cheers for the Wildcats. The Big Blue band will make the trip and play during the half. They have shown a great deal of improvement in the last few days and are prepared to defend their title of the best band in Dixie.

The Cincinnati game is the first intersectional game for the Cats since the Northwestern game in 1928. Cincinnati fans are confident that the Cats will not "showup" their Bearcat varsity and are offering good odds on the outcome of the game.

If you have never been out to the Burnet Woods institution, be sure to go out during the afternoon and look around over the campus. The campus is one of the most beautiful in the nation and includes several hundred acres of woodland.

The battle with Cincinnati gives the Cats the chance to get into the national spotlight. Many nationally prominent sports writers will be in the pressbox Saturday and a good exhibition by the Big Blue will be observed by the "big shots." The crowd which will watch the Cats in action will probably be one of the largest which they will play before this season. Nippert stadium is a giant horseshoe which seats approximately 20,000 persons and it is already sold out.

Cats Will Clash With Cincinnati U.

years and is planning to give the Wildcats plenty of opposition. Jack "the Ripper" Jean, who has been kept out of practice since Wednesday a week ago because of an injured shoulder, reported on the field Wednesday in uniform, but his shoulder has not healed sufficiently to allow him to take part in the contact work and he is not expected to start in the Cincy game. Eugene Shanklin, who played such an impressive game against the Techmen will probably start again at the blocking back position.

The Wildcats will wind up their practice for the week with a light workout under the lights on Stoll field tonight.

The probable starting lineup is as follows:

Kentucky	Pos.	Cincinnati
Rupert (188)	L.E.	(180) Ballard
Wagner (186)	L.T.	(190) G. Smith
Davidson (215)	L.G.	(190) Williams
Janes (195)	C	(248) Bunker
Aldridge (176)	R.G.	(180) Kaufman
Murphy (170)	R.T.	(195) Hall
Kreuter (182)	R.E.	(185) Heil
Shanklin (170)	Q.B.	(160) Post
Bach (180)	L.H.	(160) Yeager
Pritchard (170)	R.H.	(175) Nolting
Kercheval (191)	P.B.	(170) Caemerle

Why write a book if all you've got to say can be expressed in an epigram?

Greenies fought gallantly all the way through, gaining 334 yards to Georgia's 238 and making 15 first downs to the Bulldog's 10, but when the crucial moment came, a Tulane ball carrier fumbled. The Wave rallied in the second and third quarters but the rally fell short by 13 points.

FROSH GRIDDERS PREP FOR VANDY

Playing off a par with their reputation and fired with the determination to show the Varsity their true worth, the Kittens pranced onto Stoll field this week and helped the Varsity in their preparation for the Cincinnati game Saturday night. The practice also helped the Kittens to prepare themselves for their own game, which will be played on Stoll field Saturday, October 21, with the Vanderbilt freshmen, while the Varsity is playing Washington and Lee at Roanoke, Virginia.

The game with Vanderbilt means a lot to the yearling squad this year, because they were beaten by them last year by a score of 13 to 0, and they are out to get revenge.

The scrimmages this week have been light in comparison with those of last week, due to the fact that Cincinnati has not the tough team that Georgia Tech had, although their passing attack is one that should be watched very carefully.

In Tuesday's practice the Kittens did little more than run through the Cincinnati plays and get themselves familiar with them. Wednesday, however, the scrimmage was hard and furious throughout, and the Kittens seemed to have it on the Varsity this time, because they went through them in an apparent easy manner.

Bert Johnson, the Kittens' triple threat ace, led the frosh attack in a manner that would be a credit to many college teams. Any time a hole was open Johnson was through it like a flash, and his passing was superb.

The Kittens' running plays were in perfect working order, and with beautiful blocking, the backfield men gained many yards through the Varsity line.

In the scrimmage Wednesday the Kittens used the Cincinnati plays and had them down pat. The learning of all the plays of the different schools that the Wildcats meet during the season may help the Kittens in their attack against the Vanderbilt freshmen and the Tennessee freshmen, unless they get the plays confused.

Volley ball competition starts Tuesday, October 17, at 7 o'clock in the Gym Annex. Every fraternity on the campus has entered a team except the Sigma Nu. There is one independent team entered. Practice games which were scheduled have been played off, and they showed that the winner is going to have to be at least better than fair.

The drawings for the matches will be made, either today or tomorrow. The schedule and results of the drawings will be posted on the bulletin board in the west entrance of the Men's gymnasium immediately after the drawings.

The cross-country race is to be run October 27. Physical examinations of the entries were made yesterday at 4 o'clock in the Men's gymnasium.

Due to the bad weather, an extension of time has been granted to the participants in tennis, horse shoes, and golf. Instead of the third rounds being due October 16, the time has been extended to October 18. Semi-finals in golf doubles will be due Friday, October 20.

Briefs From Enemy Camps

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 9—Saving his first stringers for the University of Kentucky Wildcats, Coach Dana M. King and his Bearcats sent the South Dakota Coyotes home Saturday night on the short end of a 13-0 score. Tell me what makes a cigarette

taste better

WHAT makes anything taste better? It's what is in it that makes a thing taste better.

CHESTERFIELDS taste better because we buy ripe tobaccos. These ripe tobaccos are aged two and a half years—thirty months. During this time the tobaccos improve—just like wine improves by ageing.

CHESTERFIELDS taste better because they have the right kind of home-grown tobaccos and Turkish Tobaccos "welded together."

We hope this answers your question.
